

Some eigenvalue problems for the p-Laplacian

Paul Binding, University of Calgary, Canada

The p-Laplacian eigenvalue equation is nonlinear, but there are enough remains of linearity to make it interesting for linear people. The talk will cover some sources of the equation, review various results which do carry over (with modification) from the linear ones, and raise a few questions, for example about nonlinear algebra.